London Fairs 2007

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Chelsea Present at All Five Fairs in London

New York, NY - September 26, 2007, chelseaartgalleries.com

<<http://chelseaartgalleries.com>> , the most comprehensive website exclusively focused on Chelsea art events, reported today that Chelsea participation in the London art fairs is up 18% relative to 2006. No less than 46 Chelsea galleries will be exhibiting in 2007, 7 more than last year.

Casey Caplan, owner of Casey Kaplan Gallery, is very excited to be present for the first time in London at the Frieze Art Fair. "We are planning an ambitious stand that includes work by: Carsten Höller (a work related to his "slides" seen last Fall at Tate Modern's Turbine Hall), a new sculpture by former Turner Prize winner Simon Starling, and new artworks by Nathan Carter, Trisha Donnelly, Liam Gillick, Jonathan Monk, Brian Jungen, Julia Schmidt, and Johannes Wohnseifer", he says.

The outlook on business appears more optimistic than ever, particularly in light of the rising power of the European currencies. "The prices of the artworks that we will have at Frieze are in US dollars," says Kaplan, "so we do certainly welcome all with their strong British Pound Sterling, and Euros."

This year, London has attracted two new fairs, Pulse and Bridge, while losing Scope. Overall, a total of 395 galleries will exhibit in London. And while the Chelsea presence is significant, almost 90% of the galleries are not from Chelsea, so there will be much to see beyond what Chelsea has to offer.
